DENVER, COL. July 6.—Frank G. Ecice, the man who made the Chicago (Lubo the greatest baseball team in the world, died in Denver last night. Sciee, who came West for the benealt of his health four years ago, was removed to the Oakes Home yesterday. His condition was critical and he sank rapidly until his death at 10 o'clock.

By many Frank Selee was regarded as the greatest judge of young players and exponent of the finer points of the great game that this country had ever seen. He directed the famous three-time winners of the National League pennant in Boston in the early nineties; and it was his discovering genius that laid the foundation for the Chicago Nationals in which Chance was quoted as accusing the members of the commission of having overstepped authority in recommending that a bonus of $10,000 be divided among all the players who were declared eligible by the commission of having overstepped authority in recommending that a bonus of $10,000 be divided among all the players who were declared eligible by the commission to not rank and manager of the Western League control of the remarks attributed to him.
